

SOCIAL WASHINGTON IN TRANSITION: OLD TIMERS GO, NEWCOMERS POUR IN

June Engagements Almost as Numerous as the Marriages——Suffragists After Jollifications Direct Efforts at State Legislatures—Many Go on Vacations

WASHINGTON, June 14. YOUVE heard of individuals that didn't know whether they were coming or going? Well that has been a community condition, so far as social Washington is concerned of late. For the very simple reason that it is doing both so rapidly that it is almost impossible for it to keep track of itself.

People that everybody knows have been pouring out of Washington, some merely for the summer; some, alas, for good. On the other hand people whom everybody either knows or knows all about have been pouring into the city, some merely as transient guests, others as permanent residents.

There have been a number of brilliant dinners, with the Serbian Minister and Mme. Grouitch as the guests of honor. The Serbian Minister and Mme. Grouitch as the guests of honor. The Serbian Minister and Mme. Grouitch as the guests of honor.

There have been weddings, weddings, weddings! And the sweet girl graduate has, as usual, divided June honors with the bride. Incidentally the dear boys have been graduating just about as numerous as the sweet girls.

Engagements are being announced, and in many instances the wedding date coupled with the announcement, at a rate to take one's breath away. Is it any wonder that Washington, with one ear cocked toward Paris, and one eye trained on the Capitol, and a pleasant malice toward the "old-timers" of bygone days, is itself asking in the immortal phrase of former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey of Texas, "Where am I at?"

The National Woman's Suffrage Association had a big and brilliant reception at its Rhode Island headquarters Tuesday night in honor of the Senators and Representatives who had helped put suffrage over, and their wives, who practically made up the entire company invited, with the exception of some of the important suffrage leaders. Then on Wednesday night followed a second reception for the rank and file of the suffrage army.

Mrs. Catt Heads the Line.
Mrs. Catt came down from New York to head the receiving party, and was her handsome, dignified, gracious self, though evidently very tired. In the receiving party with her were Mrs. Maud Wood Park, Mrs. Helen Gardner and Mrs. James Cantrell, and these were assisted by Miss Marjorie Shuler, Mrs. Edward Keating, Miss Caroline Kelly and Miss Mabel Willard.

After about an hour of greeting and personal and official exchange, the congratulations company adjourned to the ball room and threw bouquets en masse. Mrs. Catt, Mrs. Park and Mrs. Gardner threw for the suffragists, at the Senators and Representatives who had stood by them through the fight. Representative Taylor of Colorado, who headed the suffrage committee in the last Congress, and Representative Mondell, majority floor leader of the present House, and always a good suffragist; Senator A. A. Jones, of New Mexico; Senators Reed, Smoot, and Representative Baker of California responded for the men.

It really was a most joyful occasion and there was a very creditable array of Senators and Representatives. Senator and Mrs. Truman Newberry were also among those present, reminding the looker on that Senator Newberry has been a good friend to woman suffrage, even as he is now taking up the cudgels, along with Secretary Daniels, in behalf of the yeomen (F) whom an unfeeling Congress wishes to do away with summarily.

Among others who were helping celebrate the suffrage victory were Representative and Mrs. William C. Ramsever, Representative and Mrs. John M. Nelson, Representative and Mrs. J. C. Strong, Representative and Mrs. McClell, Representative and Mrs. Burton Welch, Representative and Mrs. Sherman Burroughs, Representative and Mrs. Wooten, former Representative and Mrs. Keating and Representative and Mrs. Carlos Deo, the latter named a sister of Postmaster-General Burleson.

Also there was Mrs. Newton Baker, looking well in a gown of rose colored velvet and right from Mrs. Grouitch's dinner in her honor. The Grouitch dinner party, and an equally distinguished dinner party which Mrs. Marshall Field gave that night were supposed to have adjourned to Mrs. James McDonald's, joining her dinner for the Rianos, or rather forming the company which listened to a charming programme of negro dialect prose and verse by Miss Clara Alexander. Presumably the rest of the Grouitch party did go there, but Mrs. Baker, always an ardent suffragist, went to the suffrage jubilee instead.

Pomeroy Has Suffer's Enmity.
One thing Mrs. Baker was greatly interested in, and that was when Ohio would ratify the suffrage amendment. She seemed greatly relieved when Mrs. Catt told her it would undoubtedly do so on Monday. To a laughing question as to whether now that the amendment had passed she could forgive Senator Pomeroy's opposition and bury the hatchet she replied quite seriously: "I don't think it would be well for the Senator to nourish any Presidential aspirations. I don't believe the women are going to forget. They will defeat any man who was bigoted and unreasonable in his opposition to their having the right to vote." The Serbian Minister and Mme. Grouitch, having established themselves in their new legation—and having as their hosts guests Mr. and Mrs. George Matthews of Buffalo, who started home to-day—have been giving a round of dinners, doing their whole gastronomic duty as diplomats. This week they have entertained at dinner, for Major-Gen. and Mrs. Barnett, the Bakers and the Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall.

The other storm of hospitality has centered upon Major-Gen. Don Candido Aguilar, whose arrival seems to be the immediate result of Ambassador Bonillas's recent visit to Mexico in answer to an S. O. S. from Carranza. Gen. Aguilar and his mission arrived in Washington last Saturday and this week they have been pretty constantly fetted by members of the Mexican embassy staff, from the Ambassador down, by the acting Secretary of State, Frank Lyon Polk; by the U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, Henry Fletcher, and Mrs. Fletcher; by Gen. Long and others connected with the division of Latin-American affairs in the State Department.

His appearance at this series of entertainments called attention to the fact that Frank Loomis, Assistant Secretary of State under McKinley, was once more in Washington.

Mrs. James McDonald's dinner in honor of the Rianos on Tuesday was a brilliant ending to that woman's brilliant social season. It served the double purpose of complimenting the Rianos and drawing attention to the clever entertainment offered by Miss Clara Alexander, a Mississippi girl who has been devoting her time and talents to war camp community entertainments on the other side and eventually made a tremendous hit in London and other places in England. She has recently studied her negroes, and first hand and her impersonations, songs and readings, in prose and verse, range from grave to gay, from lively to severe.

Mrs. McDonald was also among the patronesses of an entertainment which Miss Alexander gave at the Willard on Thursday night. She closed her house to-day and with her son, Arthur Bradley Campbell, started for Newport, where she has taken a villa.

War Brought Social Additions.
Mrs. McDonald is one of the shining social lights whom Washington owes chiefly to the war. She had been passing most of her time in London, Mr. McDonald being an Englishman, but after his death she returned to America, and when America entered the war, her son of American parentage, entered the service.

Mrs. H. H. Rogers is another of Washington's war acquisitions. She came down here when Col. Rogers entered the service and has stayed and been an immense success. Last summer she bought a house here, not being able to rent one that suited her, and remodelled it. Col. Rogers is back now, and they gave a wonderful party at the Purple Inn, a place out beyond the District line, in Maryland—a brilliant dinner served at small tables on the porch and followed by dancing. It was their second home, and they went off for Northampton, L. I., for the summer. But they are to return next season, and Miss Millicent Rogers, after she has been presented in New York, will be introduced here also.

Lieut. Philippe Barber, military attaché of the Belgian legation, who headed one of the hostess of the week. He entertained a party of twelve at the opening of the Army and Navy Club Roof Garden in honor of Capt. Charles Drew, Aviation Corps, U. S. A., who has been a patient at Walter Reed. Lieut. Barber took his guests afterward to the Wardman Park Inn for the dancing. He is one of the many who are planning a trip overseas. He expects to return in September and with him Mme. Barber, who went home for a visit some time ago. His chief, the Belgian Minister, E. de Cartier de Marchienne, went over on a hurry order to help his sovereign's plan for the entertainment of the President and Mrs. Wilson last March, expecting to be back in Washington soon. Now the legation thinks perhaps he'll be back in November.

The week has seen the departure of the Colville Barclays, headed East, and the Japanese Ambassador and Viscountess Ishii headed West, both conspicuous members of the diplomatic circle here and both leaving for good. The Colville Barclays were expecting to sail from New York to-day. The Ishis, on the other hand, are on their way to Seattle and will sail about the middle of next week.

Weddings of the Week.

About the most interesting wedding of the week was that of Miss Ethel MacMurray, daughter of Mrs. Junius MacMurray and the late Brig.-Gen. MacMurray, to Col. John Marvin Wright of the Engineer Corps, U. S. A., which was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon in Epiphany Church, the ceremony being followed by a reception in the MacMurray residence. It was a brilliant military wedding, the bridegroom, his best man, Col. Earl North, and all the ushers, Col. Clarence Ridley, Col. James Parsons Robinson, Col. Francis Wilby, Col. Ford, Lieut.-Col. Robert S. Oberly and Lieut.-Col. James Cress, being in the service and in full uniform.

The bride was given away by her brother, John Van A. MacMurray, commander of the American Embassy at Tokyo, who is home on leave. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Randolph McKim, rector of the church. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. James Parsons Robinson, as matron of honor, and the two little daughters of the latter, Sally and Nancy Robinson, as flower girls.

Of course Col. and Mrs. Wright are off on their wedding trip now. On their return they are to occupy the MacMurray home at 2223 Massachusetts avenue while Mrs. MacMurray is in the country. In the fall they will find the suitable quarters for themselves, since Col. Wright is stationed in Washington, in the office of the Chief of Engineers.

On the same afternoon Linda Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stuart, was married to Roland Rhem of Chicago in Christ Church, Georgetown. The bride had one of her sisters, Miss Emily Stuart, as her maid of honor, and Mrs. Stuart, among her bridesmaids, the group being completed by Miss Louise Hatch of Boston, Miss Susanne Lewis and Miss Lucy Berry. Hyman Johns was best man for Mr. Rhem and his ushers were James Stone, Martin Fisher, William Chapline and Lieut. George Hawley, U. S. N. Mr. Rhem is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rehms of Indianapolis and expects to take his bride to Chicago to live.

Two almost equally interesting weddings on Tuesday were those of Miss Margaret Mulholland to Lieut. Eugene Longstreet Whelchel, U. S. A., and of Edna Novella Glien to Lieut. Eugene Cassady, U. S. A. The new Mrs. Whelchel is the daughter of Mrs. Martha Beard Mulholland and the late John Mulholland. Lieut. Whelchel is a grandson of Gen. James Longstreet of Georgia, one of the famous civil war leaders. He is well known in Washington, having graduated from Western High school here and being of the class of 1915 of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith of St. Margaret's in the bride's home in the Wyoming in the presence of a family party and some intimate friends. The attendants were Miss Jane McIlhenny, maid of honor; Miss Elizabeth Whelchel, Miss Marion Johnson, Miss Blanche Bryant, Miss Margaret Brattmayer, Miss Adelaide Pierce and Miss Mary Louise Casbeer as bridesmaids, while the best man was Ensign John E. Whelchel, Jr., U. S. N. Lieut. Whelchel's younger brother.

The marriage of Miss Edna Novella Glien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Glien of Chevy Chase, to Lieut. Eugene Cassady, U. S. A., was celebrated in the home of the bride's parents in the Legation street by Canon Austin in the presence of a few friends. The house was decorated with pink roses, pink sweet peas and peonies and the little white bride was attended by a pink bridesmaid of honor in the person of Miss Grace Glien. The prevailing color tapered off a little in the bridesmaids—Miss Marie Glien of Philadelphia, cousin of the bride, and Miss Arline Perry, who wore similar orchid gowns of apple green and orchid color and carried varicolored bouquets. Lieut. Leo Post, U. S. A., was best man.

Several interesting weddings were set for to-day. Gen. and Mrs. Isaac W. Little have sent out cards for the marriage of their daughter Ruth to Lieutenant-Commander William Cook Owen, U. S. N., which is to take place on Wednesday, June 25. Preparations are going forward for the wedding of Mr. Gladys Foulke Smith and Capt. Marcel Leve of the French High Commission, which is to take place in Philadelphia next Tuesday. Several weddings of interest are scattered through next week.

The former Amy Bennett, who was married to Claude Langlais of the French High Commission, is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a little daughter. She accompanied her husband to France last fall and made the acquaintance of his parents, and the two returned to Washington a couple of months later.

Anne Hopkins, who married Capt. John Gregory Hope of the British High Commission, sailed only recently for England to make the acquaintance of her husband's family, leaving her young son with his grandparents, Major and Mrs. Nevil Monroe Hopkins—a hostage and a promise for her return.

Frances Moore, who became Mme. Henri Marquisan about a year ago, is now in France with the man of her choice, Margaret Fahnstock, who married Sylvester Stokes, Jr., about the same time, is nominally domiciled in New York, but has been a frequent visitor to her mother in Washington and will undoubtedly pass part of the summer with Mrs. Fahnstock in Newport.

165TH MEN TO GIVE CONCERT.
Good Talent Promised by Co. C in Garden City Hotel on Thursday. Members of the artillery and remount branches of the service who have just returned from the polo season at Hempstead and Meadowbrook are much interested in the concert of the famous Blue Devils, Company C, 165th Infantry, in the Garden City Hotel on Thursday evening. Fourteen socially prominent women, representing all sections of Long Island, will act as patronesses. The proceeds will be used to purchase a memorial tablet for the thirty-four members of the company who were killed in France.

One feature will be the parade of the company veterans, to ten of whom have been awarded the D. S. C. or the Croix de Guerre. They will be led by Major Henry A. Bots, who was in command at Champagne and Chateau Thierry and who wears both decorations.

The patronesses for the concert are Mrs. George Elder Adams, Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. William W. Cocks, Mrs. W. Burke Cockeran, Mrs. J. Lannin, Mrs. William McAdams, Mrs. Cord Meyer, Mrs. William Nease, Mrs. Charles A. Pettino, Mrs. R. R. Sizer, Mrs. W. Clarke Roe, Mrs. Henry W. Chase, Mrs. George A. Thayer and Mrs. William E. Young. Henry W. Taft will preside.

All of the entertainers that will appear have seen service overseas, and the programme will be a typically military one. Sergeant Thomas O'Kelly, winner of the D. S. C., will sing a song written by Father Duffy, chaplain of the regiment, and dedicated to the Irish bachelors. Marjorie Harcom, contralto; Sergeant Louis Scramolin, young Italian composer; Harvey Wilson, tenor, and Charles Bryson, soldier-cellist, round out the programme.
